Email Headline: Rock Icon's Stepdaughter DEAD - Fans Shocked! - Heartbreaking.

Lucy-Bleu Knight, the step-daughter of famous Guns 'N' Roses guitarist Slash, has unexpectedly passed away. The tragic news of Knight's passing was revealed by her mother Meegan Hodges and her step-father Slash on social media this past Sunday. Hodges revealed that her 25-year-old daughter had "peacefully" passed away on Friday, July 19th, in Los Angeles.

Details surrounding Knight's death have yet to be revealed, however, an autopsy by the Los Angeles Medical Examiner's office has been scheduled. In a heartfelt tribute post to Hodges's Instagram page, Hodges stated that her daughter will be remembered as an "incredibly talented artist", as well as a "loveable sweet soul". Knight's family has asked their fans and public audience to respect their privacy at this time along with keeping social media speculation to a minimum during this time.

After the announcement of Knight's death, a final post was uploaded to her personal Instagram page, with a message that left some fans with an eerie feeling. The post read a statement that seemingly came from Knight, which read that Knight was apologizing to anyone she had made feel "manipulated" and "controlled", as well as hoping her soul could evolve from such poor personal traits. It is unknown whether the post was scheduled by Knight or posted by another source after her death, the mysteriousness surrounding the situation has left many fans confused. In the comment section of the post, many fans believed Knight had scheduled the post before her death. Fans continued to comment that Knight may have been too hard on herself, and was loved more than she realized, alluding to the fact that Knight's death may have not been an accident.

Due to the recent tragedy, Knight's step-father Slash has paused his SERPENT tour and canceled four shows. The tour is set to resume this Sunday, July 28th, in Toronto, Canada. Knight was the daughter of Hodges and her biological father, Mark Knight.
